

Agora

核心词汇

- primarily adv. 主要地，首先
- access v. 获取 n. 接近，入口
- beginning n. 开始，开端；起源
- perception n. 感知
- meet v. 遇见
- pay v. 支付；付给；给予
- booth n. 公用电话亭；货摊
- employ v. 雇用；用；使忙于
- philosopher n. 哲学家
- discover v. 发现
- like v. 喜欢；喜爱；希望
- carry v. 携带；运载；传送
- environment n. 环境，外界
- honour n. 光荣；尊敬，敬意
- elderly adj. 较老的，年长的 n. 到了晚年的人，老年人
- stranger n. 陌生人；新来者
- delightful adj. 高兴的
- detail n. 细节
- system n. 系统；制度，体制；方法，做法；身体
- approximately adv. 大约
- entertaining adj. 有趣的，使人愉快的
- intelligence n. 智力，智慧，理解力
- significant adj. 重要的
- numerous adj. 为数众多的；许多
- gradually adv. 逐渐地，逐步地

- status n. 地位
- centre n. 中心；中枢 v. 集中
- prosperity n. 繁荣
- legislation n. 法律，法规；立法，法律的制定
- constitution n. 章程；体质；构造
- ornament n. 装饰物；装饰
- leaf n. 叶，叶子
- circumstance n. 环境，境遇
- practice n. 练习；实践；业务
- concept n. 观点，观念
- agenda n. 议事日程
- communication n. 通讯；传达；交通
- trade n. 贸易；职业 v. 交易
- everyday adj. 每天的，日常的
- act v. 行动；见效 n. 行为
- architecture n. 建筑式样；建筑学
- tragedy n. 惨事，惨案；悲剧
- leadership n. 领导
- appropriate adj. 适当的，恰当的
- charge v. 索价；控告 n. 费用
- wealthy adj. 富有的，富裕的
- democratic adj. 民主的
- news n. 新闻；消息

双语正文

Standing on a patchwork of sun-baked marble dust and wild thyme in downtown Athens today, you might initially see just scattered columns and statues—but close your eyes. Imagine the beginning of Western democratic life: Socrates, barefoot and unapologetic, cornering an elderly olive merchant with questions about justice; a wealthy patron commissioning a new ornament for the Poikile Stoa; Saint Paul, a curious stranger with a foreign concept, debating Stoics and Epicureans on the next great shift in human perception. This is the Agora, not merely a ruin but a living archive of communication, trade, and radical leadership that shaped the world as we know it.

如今站在雅典市中心一片由被阳光烤热的大理石碎屑和野生百里香铺就的土地上，你最初可能只会看到散落的柱廊与雕像——但请闭上眼睛。想象西方民主生活的开端：赤着脚、毫不妥协的苏格拉底，正拦住一位年长的橄榄商人，追问关于正义的问题；一位富裕的赞助人为彩绘柱廊（Poikile Stoa）委托制作新的装饰物；带着陌生概念的好奇陌生人圣保罗，正与斯多葛学派和伊壁鸠鲁学派的学者辩论人类感知的下一次重大转变。这便是雅典阿哥拉市集，它不只是一处废墟，更是塑造了我们所知世界的沟通、贸易与激进领导力的鲜活档案。

Derived from the Greek word for "open gathering place," the Agora gradually evolved from a Neolithic environment of toolmakers to a Mycenaean burial ground dotted with tholos tombs approximately 3,500 years ago. By the 6th century BCE, however, it emerged as the centre of Athenian public and private life, accessible via goat paths and the only paved thoroughfare, the Sacred Way. Its transformation was tied directly to legislation: first, Solon's reforms loosened the upper class's grip on agenda setting and status, dividing citizens by property income instead of birth; later, Cleisthenes rewrote the constitution entirely, giving every free-born male citizen a seat at the political table. To honour this newfound freedom, bronze statues of Harmodios and Aristogeiton—misremembered but revered "tyrannicides"—were erected, Europe's earliest political memorials, which the Persians carried off in 480 BCE only for Athens to immediately replace.

"Agora"一词源自希腊语，意为"开放集会之地"。约 3500 年前，它从新石器时代工具制造者的环境中逐渐演变，成为迈锡尼文明时期点缀着蜂窝墓的墓地。到公元前 6 世纪，它却成为雅典公共与私人生活的中心，人们可通过山羊小径与唯一的铺

砌大道——圣道——抵达这里。它的变革直接与立法息息相关：首先，梭伦改革削弱了上层阶级对议程制定与地位的掌控，以财产而非出身划分公民；后来，克利斯提尼彻底改写了宪法，让每一位自由出生的男性公民都能参与政治。为纪念这份新获得的自由，人们竖立了哈莫狄奥斯与阿里斯托吉顿的青铜雕像——这两位被误记但备受尊崇的"弑僭者"，是欧洲最早的政治纪念物。公元前480年，波斯人将它们掠走，雅典却立刻重新制作了新的雕像。

The Persian sack under Xerxes left the Agora in ruins, but Pericles, Athens' golden-age leader, spearheaded a restoration that cemented its legacy. Public buildings like the Prytaneum (the round Tholos, charged with housing the sacred community fire and emergency executives) and the delightful Poikile Stoa (adorned with Polygnotus's murals of the Battle of Marathon) rose alongside bustling stalls: fishmongers with glistening everyday catch, potters employing centuries-old techniques, and bakers hawking barley bread. This was a true marketplace of both goods and ideas: philosophers like Zeno of Elea tested paradoxes on passersby, tragedy playwrights Aeschylus and Sophocles previewed acts of their latest works, and news of wars, alliances, or Olympic victories spread faster than wildfire—no printing press required.

波斯国王薛西斯的洗劫让阿哥拉沦为废墟，但雅典黄金时代的领袖伯里克利牵头开展修复工程，巩固了它的历史遗产。公共建筑如普林塔涅姆（圆形的托洛斯特厅，负责保管神圣的社区圣火与应急行政官员）与令人愉悦的彩绘柱廊（饰有波利格诺托斯绘制的马拉松战役壁画）拔地而起，alongside 热闹的摊位：售卖着闪着光泽的日常渔获的鱼贩、沿用数百年技法的制陶工匠，以及叫卖大麦面包的面包师。这里才是真正的商品与思想的市集：埃利亚的芝诺等哲学家向路人展示悖论，悲剧剧作家埃斯库罗斯与索福克勒斯预演最新作品的场次，战争、同盟或奥林匹克胜利的新闻传播速度比野火还快——根本不需要印刷机。

Pericles' vision didn't stop there. The Agora became a space for social mingling, too: booths served wine and figs, gardens with olive and laurel leaves offered shade, and fountains quenched thirsts during hot Athenian summers. Even after it was sacked again by the Heruli and Visigoths, the Agora endured: the Temple of Hephaestus was converted into a church, preserving its stunning architecture, and small markets persisted, like modern-day Monastiraki's weekend open-air bazaars that still occupy the same ground.

伯里克利的愿景不止于此。阿哥拉也成为社交聚会的场所：货摊售卖葡萄酒与无花果，种有橄榄与月桂叶的花园提供阴凉，喷泉在雅典炎热的夏日里为人们解渴。即便后来它再次被赫鲁利人与西哥特人洗劫，阿哥拉依然存续下来：赫菲斯托斯神庙被改建为教堂，保留了其令人惊叹的建筑风格，小型市集也延续了下来，就像如今莫纳斯提拉基周末的露天集市，依然占据着同一片土地。

In the 19th century, archaeologists discovered the full scope of the site, and restoration began in earnest, culminating in the 1950s reconstruction of the Stoa of Attalos, a gift from Pergamon's king that now houses artifacts in numerous glass cases, each telling a detailed story of daily life. Today, locals and tourists meet here, sip coffee, and watch protests unfold—just as Athenians did 2,500 years ago. The Agora may no longer be the seat of legislation, but it remains a testament to the power of open dialogue, proving that democratic values, when rooted in community, can weather any circumstance. (Word count: 792)

19 世纪，考古学家发现了这片遗址的全貌，修复工作正式启动，最终在 20 世纪 50

年代完成了阿塔罗斯柱廊的重建——这座由帕加马国王赠送的柱廊如今在众多玻璃展柜中陈列着文物，每一件都讲述着日常生活的细节。如今，当地人与游客在此相聚，啜饮咖啡，看着抗议活动展开——就像 2500

年前的雅典人一样。阿哥拉或许不再是立法的场所，但它依然是开放对话力量的见证，证明植根于社群的民主价值观，能够经受住任何境遇的考验。（词数：792）